

NOTES FOR APPLICANTS TO CLINICAL TRAINING IN PSYCHOANALYTIC PSYCHOTHERAPY

Requirements

1. Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy

Applicants must be in three times a week therapy with an approved Training Therapist for at least 18 months prior to the start of the clinical training course. Any variation on this would need to be considered by the Training Committee on a case-by-case basis. The current list of training therapists and training supervisors names may be obtained from the SIP office and, if so desired, a consultation can be offered regarding choice of therapist. (Trainees are required to remain in a minimum of thrice weekly therapy until qualification).

2. Pre-clinical Learning and Experience

- a. Relevant experience of psychodynamically or psychoanalytically oriented clinical work with individuals, gained either professionally or in an honorary or voluntary placement (for example, alongside undertaking the Pre-clinical Courses).
- b. Psychiatric experience gained either professionally or through a psychiatric placement (see SIP's Pre-Clinical Courses guidelines for more details).
- c. Completion of SIP's Pre-Clinical Courses: Infant Observation, Work Discussion and Classical Theory, or equivalent. Applicants need to have completed, or be in the process of completing, the written papers for Infant Observation and Work Discussion.

The application papers give detailed guidance on assembling a pre-clinical portfolio to demonstrate pre-clinical learning and experience, including guidance on gaining clinical experience through an honorary or voluntary placement.

Where an applicant wishes alternative pre-clinical learning to be accredited as equivalent to SIP's Pre-clinical Courses, they should be aware that each case will be assessed individually. They may expect that a decision regarding equivalence of any particular course of learning will be made on the basis of the course length, content, psychoanalytic focus and accreditation of those delivering it, as well as the applicant's successful completion of the course.

Students registered on SIP's Pre-Clinical Courses are strongly advised to discuss their ongoing learning with their Personal Tutor. All applicants are strongly advised to discuss their readiness to apply with the Admissions Advisor at an early stage.

- 3. Professional or academic qualification or equivalent
- 4. Suitable personal qualities to undertake training in and sustain intensive psychotherapeutic work with adults

Applying for the course

- Application should be made through completion of the three- part application form, including personal information, personal statements and a portfolio evidencing pre-clinical learning and experience. An Equality Monitoring Form should also be completed and sent by separate e-mail. This will be anonymized and stored separately from your application.
- The closing date for applications is displayed on the website and applications will be welcomed any time before that date. Late applications will be considered if circumstances allow. Applications should be submitted by email to training@sipspsychotherapy.org with any sensitive data password protected, with the password passed on by separate email.
- On submission of an application the relevant application fee should be paid by electronic bank transfer. The relevant fee is displayed on the website and our bank details can be found in the Payment Terms document also on the website.
- On receipt of an application, the application will be checked to ensure the basic requirements are met and the pre-clinical portfolio is complete or on schedule to be completed before the start of training. If the application is in order, then references will be taken up and two interviews will be arranged during the Spring term.
- Selection for a place will be made on the basis of the two interviews, the references and the application forms. If necessary, the applicant may be asked to attend a third interview. Ordinarily, applicants can expect to be informed of the outcome of interviews by the end of May.
- Where an applicant will not have completed the required pre-clinical learning and experience until after the selection process, a conditional offer of a place may be made, subject to the applicant satisfactorily completing the relevant learning and/or experience and providing the necessary evidence of having done so.

Successful Applicants

Please note, acceptance onto the course does not imply qualification or that registration is guaranteed; it includes a financial commitment to pay fees (displayed on website); and SIP reserves the right to postpone a course if there are insufficient successful applicants.
